England is a great country with great culture, history and legacy. It is not a surprise, that there are plenty of museums there, which are very popular with people. But some of them are becoming less or more popular from year to year. And I want to figure out, why figures are changing, using the features from social statistics from 2013 to 2017.

We have five museums: British Museum, National Museum, Tate Gallery, Natural History Museum and Science Museum. First three managed to double the amount of visitors in 2015 and their features and rate are still drawing on. Natural History Museum meanwhile Natural History museum had 1.6 mln visitors in 2015, instead of 3.7 mln in 2013, and Science Museum had three time less people as they had in 2013. What is it connected with? Before both museums appealed for the top of the statistics. But in 2014 they decided to introduce admission charges, while the others leave the price the same and then will get higher rate, respectively to them.

I think, that Natural Historic Museum and Science Museum need to get rid of charge extra charges, which affect on their statistics. And despite the growing popularity of the first three museums, I suggest them not to increase prices and leave them substantial.

In conclusion, I want to say, that museums must be accessible, because their main aim to familiarize with culture of England, but not to make money!

In conclusion we see, that more money museums require, less visitors they have and reversal.
