Report.

Popularity of museums and galleries in England.

Museums and galleries are a big part of national treasure. But nowadays the rate of these places is going down. In this report, I will try to understand why it is happening.

Due to information in the table which is given by Social Statistics, we can see how many people were going to museums and galleries in different years. For example, National Gallery got more than 2 million new visitors in 4 years! But the problem is that in the same time Science Museum lost 2.2 million visitors.

Why are the results so different? The answer is that the museums that introduced new admission charges lost their clients. In one hand, when Natural History Museum and Science Museum got new charges in 2014, their attendance became less than it was few years ago. For example, in 2013 the Natural History Museum welcomed 3.7 mln people, but after admission charges in 2014, the population went down. In other hand, British Museum respectively welcome more and more people every year.

In total, I would like to recommend some museums not to introduce any charges that could cause problems with visitors and to try to get your clients pleased.

In the conclusion, this report says that British museums should pay more attention to their visitors' wishes.
